

Gadsden Arts Center

In 1989, Art in Gadsden: A Regional Exhibition of Fine Art featured local artists and enhanced art education for local school children. The show was a wonderful success and gave Gadsden County students their first exposure to fine art. The exhibition gained support from the community as it provided a market for regional artists to sell their works and it attracted visitors to the county.

Now housed in the handsome, historic 1910 Bell & Bates building, in quaint downtown Quincy, the Gadsden Arts Center has the ability to hold many exhibitions each year, including the Annual Art in Gadsden every fall. The Gadsden Arts Center also hosts year around exhibitions of children's art from area schools in the Bates Children's Learning Area and invites area children to participate in a Summer Art Camp held in the Art Classroom.

The Gift Shop is located just off the lobby of the Gadsden Arts Center with entry through the front doors. The shop is dedicated to displaying original work and reproductions by local artists and artisans with the hope that the visitor will find items which reflect the culture and heritage of the area to take away with them. Posters of each of the Art in Gadsden exhibitions, postcards, note cards, unframed original works and reproductions are available. Art books, exhibition catalogues, jewelry and items for children are also for sale.

Plan your next meeting or reception in a building blending art with history. The original floors, rolling ladders, raised office, and freight elevator of the former hardware store retain the 1910 character while providing a state of the art facility for the display of fine art. The Bates Community Room is the perfect setting for events requiring style, interesting surroundings, and comfortable ambience.

As a cultural beacon, Gadsden Arts works to enhance arts education, provide cultural opportunities, and stimulate economic growth in Gadsden County.
